VOLUME 2, ISSUE 3 March 2015

Personal Finance for All

Four FREE Tuesday evenings with Professional Financial Advisors Michele Galante, CHS and Lance Wiebe, CFP. Come out to listen to their common-sense approach to managing your financial matters!

Held in Meeting Room A, Fleming Centre. Please register.

This month: Financial Myth Busters Tuesday March 10, 6:30 pm

When it comes to financial advice, it can be difficult to separate fact from fiction. Is it futile to try to save thousands in taxes? Should you liquidate your parents' assets before they move to a long-term care home? Do you need a financial planner if you don't have any money? Michele and Lance look at common myths about financial planning.

Future programs will be held in April, May and June. Topics include Tax Planning and Executors. For more information, pick up a flyer or check our website.

(Belated) Congratulations!

Lincoln Public Library congratulates Jill Nicholson on her tenth anniversary as our CEO!

Jill came to us in January 2005 from the Region of Waterloo Library, and has worked in libraries in Ajax, Leamington, Markham, Ottawa and Nepean.

Jill is active in both library organizations, such as the Ontario Library Association and the Federation of Ontario Public Libraries, and in our community with the Employment Help Centre Board, the Literacy Council of Niagara West, the Region of Niagara Culture Committee and the Lamplighter Tour.

Jill received a B.A. in French, a Master of Library Science, and a mid-career Diploma in Public Administration from the University of Western Ontario.

Lauren's Picks

What If by Randall Munroe. I was told about this book by a co-worker and devoured it. It is penned by a former NASA employee turned web comic artist with a degree in physics. The book itself brings together scientifically calculated answers to absurd fan mail inquiries he has received over the years. Science is utilized with comedic artistry in a book that is laugh out loud funny and presents science as a subject that is anything but dry or uninteresting. The questions that were covered dealt with knowledge that every reader should know, such as "What would happen if you tried to hit a baseball pitched at 90 percent the speed of light?" and "Could you build a jetpack using downward-firing machine guns?" Not to be missed.

Wild Magic by Tamora Pierce. One of Pierce's best. It begins a quartet of young adult fantasy novels set in the medieval world of Tortall. The story centres around a young heroine coming to terms with abilities she does not understand and cannot control. Veralidaine Sarrasri, more commonly known as Daine, is a relatable figure to anyone struggling with finding who they are and who they hope to be. The supporting cast draw you in and often win your heart as they help Daine navigate the treacherous waters of coming of age and learning where she fits in the world. This is most certainly a book worth reading.

Doctor Who: The Complete First Series [DVD]. Back in 2005, the series Doctor Who received a reboot and with it, a new cult following. The series, in case you were not aware, deals with a "time-lord" known only as The Doctor, who travels through space and time with a companion or two. The first series deals with a new incarnation of the Doctor, who is dealing with some dark memories, and with shop girl Rose who can't resist the excitement of not just seeing the world, but seeing (and often saving) the universe. The incredibly powerful doctor is conflicted and far from perfect, which makes for a more fascinating character. Rose is someone relatable that viewers can root for. Doctor Who is packed with action but still manages to be touching, funny, and make you think. If you haven't tried it yet, now is the time.

Naked in Death by J.D. Robb. The first novel in a series that is addictive and irresistible, written by Nora Roberts under her pen name, J.D. Robb. The In Death series can't help but draw you in with well-realized characters and an exciting plot. This first book in the series revolves around police detective Eve Dallas as she tracks down a serial killer terrorizing New York and fights a growing attraction to the main suspect. While forbidden attraction is not an unconventional premise, J.D. Robb keeps it fresh, and in her typical style builds characters that you don't want to say goodbye to. Fortunately, unlike many of her titles under Nora Roberts, you don't have to. The series just released its fortieth book in the adventures of Eve Dallas and it's still just as irresistible and readable as when I started.

The Innovators by Walter Isaacson. The Innovators is a non-fiction narrative that highlights and champions the collaborative effort involved in innovation. It starts back in the 1840s with Lady Ada Lovelace and Babbage, who worked on the first calculating machines, and carries through the digital revolution into the technological age we live in today. The collaborations that built technology are delightfully offset with bits of narrative that personalize those that reshaped and innovated our world. The technical jargon that inevitably accompanies the topic, while present, is not overwhelming and is well explained. Anyone with an interest in the development of the technological world we live in today should read this book.

Lauren Mous writes: "I have been an avid reader all my life but the possibility of working in a library and connecting other people with books didn't occur to me until university, when I got a summer job at my local library. Librarians belonged in a mystical realm as the keepers of books and knowledge, but with that summer job it occurred to me that I could take a place in that realm as well. After finishing a degree in ancient history I pursued my diploma as a library technician and here I am. I get to spend my days working with computers, my second love, and surrounded by books, which is my first."

LPL's Shelves

Can reading a novel change your life? Yes!, according to the authors of The Novel Cure: an A-Z of literary remedies, who looked at two thousand years of literature to find the cure for what ails you. Simply look up your problem, and check out the antidote!

Claustrophobic? Escape into the world of Little House on the Prairie by Laura Ingalls Wilder.

Broke? You'll likely agree that money can't buy happiness when you read about Jay Gatsby in F. Scott Fitzgerald's The Great Gatsby.

Breaking up with someone? The authors offer a list of The Ten Best Breakup Novels, with Nick Hornby's High Fidelity taking top spot.

Whatever your condition, the prescription is Read! Even if you aren't cured, you will be transported to a new world for a while!

Looking for other books about books and reading? Here are a few:

Read for your life: literature as a life support system by Joseph Gold

Book lust: recommended reading for every mood, moment and reason by Nancy Pearl

Raising boy readers by Michael Sullivan

What we see when we read: a phenomenology, with illustrations by Peter Mendelsund

Born reading: bringing up bookworms in a digital age: from picture books to ebooks and everything in between by Jason Boog

And don't forget about the library's great online resource, Novelist Plus!
